For this years Belmont stakes I had a total of 217 profiles of which 124 actually fit certain runners....

Profiles on the left are Winning profile....

The (6) Ice Box and (5) Fly Down both have an impressive 15 and 14 winning profiles respectively. Not too far behind is (9) Stately Victor with 12 and (10) Stay Put with 8....

Looking at only the winning profiles, four horses have a legitimate chance of winning this race.....

Fly Down and Ice Box have a distinct advantage over the others..

Interestingly enough, (11) First Dude does not have a single winning profile...

Once again, (5) Fly Down and (6) Ice Box lead, while several others are far behind...

Conclusion:
Fly Down and Ice Box have a great chance in being in the trifecta....

The profiles on the left are Superfecta profiles, i.e., profiles which point to a horse finishing first, second, third, or fourth....

It's pretty clear that (5) fly Down will be in the superfecta..., confirming the win, exacta and trifecta profiles....

Surprisingly, (7) Drosselmeyer has 5 profiles indicating a place in the top 4... However, many losing profiles and a lack of other profiles precludes me from believing he will have an impact....

The profiles on the left are Losing profiles, i.e., profiles which point to a horse NOT finishing first, second, third, or fourth....

These profiles are used to eliminate non-contenders...

The (3) Uptowncharlybrown, (4) Make Music For Me, and (8) Game On Dude seem to be non-contenders as they have the most losing profiles...

These are the 3 horses that, according to the profiles, can be considered throw-outs...

Although (11) First Dude has very few losing profiles - he has very few winning ones to take him seriously... , but... if I remember correctly - he was a throw out for the Preakness Stakes and finished second...

Very difficult horse to figure out - by way of profiles, that is....
